What more does anyone need to know?

Plenty more in part 2 of this ongoing series

I sure picked a heckuva time to start this series.

While the story around the attempted “assassination” of Trump remains fluid, I would be remiss if I didn’t address the events in Butler, PA that occurred over the weekend. As this series draws to a close in the coming weeks, it will become clearer why I remain extremely dubious of what transpired on Saturday — amongst other reasons. Without getting too into the weeds right now, let’s consider the possibility that this — — is no different than this —

Color me skeptical that The Regime is about to off their most valuable American asset.

By exploring Donald Trump's mentors, Norman Vincent Peale and Roy Marcus Cohn, we have unearthed a labyrinth of deception and occult entanglements. Peale, masquerading as a Christian leader, diluted the Gospel to push his Masonic principles; while the infamous Cohn ingrained Trump with his ruthless brand of pragmatism. This duo played key roles in sculpting the enigma that is Trump, a man whose political failures and dubious associations are merely symptoms of a deeper, and far more sinister, influence.

As we begin Part II of this series, we must now delve into the nefarious nexus between the prolific sex-trafficker Jeffrey Epstein and Donald Trump. It was Epstein who inherited Roy Cohn's sexual blackmail empire, representing the continuation of a dark tradition of manipulation and control. As the genocide of Gaza continues to unfold, of particular concern is Trump's longstanding ties to known Mossad assets and Zionists of all stripes, both political and religious.

These connections underpin the seemingly enigmatic actions of Trump.

He's a lot of fun to be with. It is even said that he likes beautiful women as much as I do, and many of them are on the YOUNGER side.

No doubt about it — Jeffrey enjoys his social life."

We must trace his steps back to his early years, to when he worked under Donald Barr, the father of none other than Bill Barr, Trump's former Attorney General. Donald Barr was the headmaster of the elite Dalton School in Manhattan, and it was here that Epstein, a college dropout, secured a teaching position in the mid-1970s. How did an individual with no formal qualifications land a job at such a prestigious institution? The answer lies amidst the shadowy halls of power. Donald Barr had a storied career in education and intelligence, and he saw something in young Jeffrey — a spark, perhaps, or more likely, a willingness to break the rules.

Fast forward to the late 1970s, and we find Epstein at Bear Stearns, a major investment bank. Here, he quickly rose through the ranks, making a name for himself as a financial whiz. However, the whispers of misconduct were never far behind. In 1981, Epstein's tenure at Bear Stearns came to an abrupt end. The official story, as Epstein and his allies would have it, was that he left to run his own business: the truth, as usual, is far murkier. Steven Hoffenberg, Epstein's future partner-in-crime, claimed Epstein was forced out due to "illegal operations."

But the real bombshell lies in the SEC's records. Vanity Fair reported that Epstein was interviewed in 1981 as part of an insider trading investigation at Bear Stearns. This was no minor infraction — the case involved a tender offer for St. Joe Minerals Corp by Seagram Company Ltd., owned by the Bronfman family (a family with its own sordid history related to Epstein). Epstein's involvement in this scandal already paints a picture of a man deeply entrenched in illegal activities long before he became a household name for far darker reasons.

— Trump and Epstein throughout the years.

After his controversial exit from Bear Stearns, Epstein reinvented himself as a real estate developer. In retrospect, Epstein's transition into real estate appears as a calculated one; one that allowed him to further embed himself in the echelons of wealth and power. Epstein's real estate ventures were grandiose, much like his ambitions. He acquired properties in New York, Palm Beach, and New Mexico, each serving as both opulent residences and hubs for his illicit activities.

Epstein's entanglements reach even into the realm of transhumanism, an insidious rebranding of eugenics aimed at creating a subservient class of human-machine hybrids (and a topic which I have devoted a significant amount of coverage to). Epstein has donated money to numerous transhumanist organizations, such as the World Transhumanist Association, Inc. in 2011. It was at Jeffrey's New Mexico ranch where he intended to impregnate up to 20 women at a time in the hopes of improving the human genome through nanomedicine. Despite credible evidence that numerous sexual assaults occurred at this multimillion-dollar estate, Epstein's "Zorro Ranch" remains the only property owned by the financier to not be raided by either the Trump or Biden DoJ. The ranch was sold for an undisclosed sum to an unknown buyer in August of 2023.

Epstein's reach extended far beyond American shores, with significant ties tracing him back to the Mossad:

...Epstein's affiliation with Israeli intelligence dated back at least to the mid-1980s, when Ben-Menashe was personally introduced to Epstein by Robert Maxwell. Per Ben-Menashe, Maxwell introduced Epstein as having been approved by the "higher ups" in the Israeli intelligence network where Ben-Menashe and Maxwell were both operating. The introduction reportedly occurred at Maxwell's offices in London.

During this period, Ben-Menashe has stated that he believes one of these "higher ups" was Ehud Barak. ... Barak would later become infamous for his close proximity, not only to Epstein, but his sex trafficking/sex blackmail operation...

In a September 2019 interview with journalist and former CBS News producer Zev Shalev, he stated "he [Maxwell] wanted us to accept him [Epstein] as part of our group.... I'm not denying that we were at the time a group that it was Nick Davies [Foreign Editor of the Maxwell-Owned Daily Mirror], it was Maxwell, it was myself and our team from Israel, we were doing what we were doing."

— Whitney Alice Webb, One Nation Under Blackmail: The Sordid Union Between Intelligence and Crime that Gave Rise to Jeffrey Epstein, Vol. 2

It is almost certainly through the media-tycoon Robert Maxwell that Epstein and Trump were first introduced. Donald's father Fred shared an attorney with Robert Maxwell: Roy Cohn.

— Donald Trump and Robert Maxwell (pictured to the far right), father of Ghislaine Maxwell.

Trump and Epstein's paths crossed in the late 1980s, a time when both were prominent figures in the New York real estate scene. Trump, a brash and flamboyant developer, found in Epstein a kindred spirit. From the gilded towers of New York City to the sun-drenched shores of Palm Beach, Trump and Epstein had long been key players in the real estate market. Their relationship, now shrouded in secrecy and scandal, traces back first to 1987.

Trump would purchase The Plaza Hotel not long after his friendship with Epstein began. The Plaza was the location of previous blackmail operations orchestrated by Cohn, becoming a key venue for Trump's own debaucheries. Andy Lucchesi was a model who helped organize these parties at the behest of Trump, and he provides chilling accounts of these events (emphasis mine):

A lot of girls, 14, look 24. That's as juicy as I can get. I never asked how old they were; I just partook. I did partake in activities that would be controversial, too.

Even in death, the indelible specter of Cohn and his ghastly legacy lives on.

— Trump and Ghislaine Maxwell.

In 1990, Epstein established his presence in Palm Beach, becoming Trump's neighbor and solidifying their growing friendship. This geographical proximity was no coincidence; it facilitated a closer collaboration between the two men, allowing them to partake in each other's hedonistic lifestyles. It was during this time period that Ghislaine became best friends with Trump's first wife, Ivana.

Epstein's real estate empire provided the perfect backdrop for this alliance. His properties became playgrounds for the elite, places where deals were struck, secrets shared, and alliances forged. Trump was a frequent guest at Epstein's lavish parties, events that were often more about networking and influence-peddling than mere socializing. In 1992, Epstein and Trump co-hosted a party at Mar-a-Lago, Trump's palatial estate in Palm Beach. This event, which featured a bevy of young women, was emblematic of their shared lifestyle and mutual "interests."

Additionally, Epstein and Maxwell both boasted that they were the architects behind the introduction of Donald and Melania Trump, adding yet another layer of intrigue to the sordid connections between these figures. Melania would not be the only romantic interest that Trump met through Epstein:

Another woman Epstein “dated” while dating Jardine and Maxwell (and apparently others) was Celina Midelfart. Midelfart was another woman who accompanied Epstein to the Clinton White House, where she escorted Epstein to the executive residence twice in a single day. Midelfart has since claimed that she and Epstein did not date but had a “business relationship” between 1994 and 1997, though several witnesses at Ghislaine Maxwell’s trial contradicted this claim. Shortly after she stopped dating Epstein, she began dating Epstein’s then-associate Donald Trump. Trump reportedly dumped Midelfart to date his current wife, Melania.

— Whitney Alice Webb, *One Nation Under Blackmail: The Sordid Union Between Intelligence and Crime that Gave Rise to Jeffrey Epstein, Vol. 2

In the intertwining webs of influence and association surrounding Epstein, Ghislaine, and Trump, the sharing of personnel emerges as another telling thread.

The Banasiaks thus personify a curious nexus where these households intersect again. Janusz Banasiak assumed the role of Epstein’s Palm Beach house manager in February of 2005, a pivotal time coinciding with the onset of police scrutiny. Banasiak remained in this capacity for over a decade, living in a staff residence adjoining Epstein’s waterfront estate. Meanwhile, Banasiak’s wife Rodica contributed her services to Ivana Trump in Palm Beach until the sale of Ivana’s residence in 2014.

“Israel has to FINISH that job.”

— President Donald Trump on the Gazan Genocide. June 5th, 2024

As we plunge deeper into the labyrinth of Trump’s associations, it becomes unmistakably clear that his presidency has been a façade, orchestrated in large part by Zionist puppeteers.

Trump’s presidency has been described as “the most pro-Israel and pro-Jewish in American history”: his campaign has even touted him as America’s first Jewish president (they must not have gotten the memo on ol’ Abraham). Miriam Adelson’s substantial financial support for Trump’s 2024 re-election bid and Charles Kushner’s $1 million donation (one of among the 143 last-minute pardons by Trump) epitomize the financial and political intertwining between Trump and prominent Zionist backers.

Donald Trump’s acquisition of Resorts International and subsequent financial bailout — by the Rothschilds no less — likewise illustrates his deep entanglement with these interests. Resorts International was once a key player in the gambling and hotel industry. It was originally controlled by a formidable group of financiers, including: Meyer Lansky, Tibor Rosenbaum, William Mellon Hitchcock, David Rockefeller, & Baron Edmond de Rothschild. These names are synonymous with financial power and political influence, illustrating the depth of the financial web that surrounded the now defunct company.

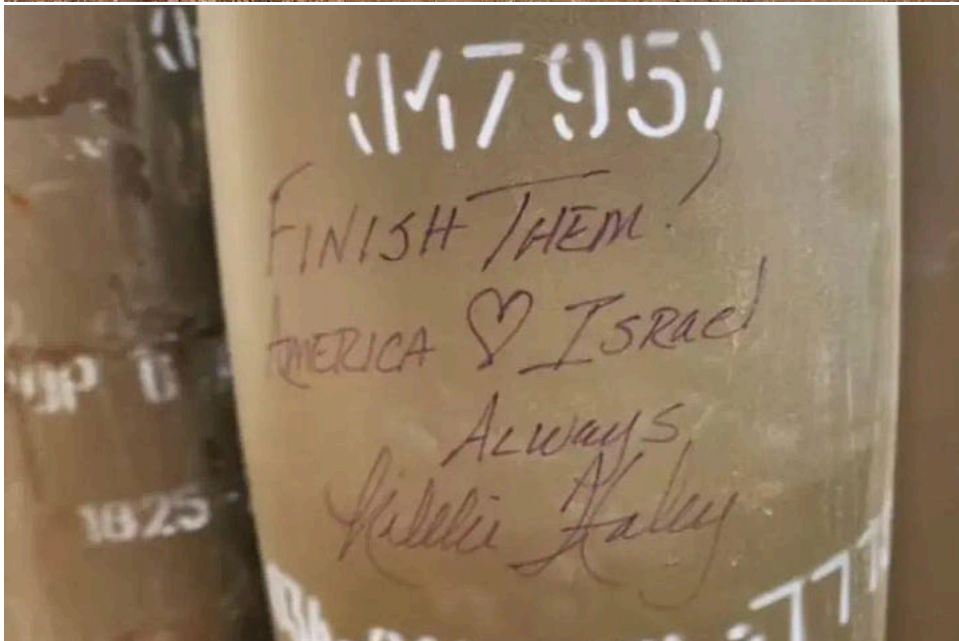

In 1987, Donald Trump acquired a controlling interest in Resorts International, ultimately resulting in his acquisition of the Taj Mahal casino. Trump’s financial troubles in Atlantic City led to another critical Zionist link in this chain — Wilbur Ross. As an employee of Rothschild Inc., Ross orchestrated an extremely favorable bailout for Trump during his Atlantic City debacle:

[Wilbur] Ross, then an investment banker working for Rothschild Inc., helped bondholders negotiate with Trump, whose finances were unraveling. The final deal reduced Trump’s ownership stake in the Taj [Mahal] but left him in charge, and bondholders were unhappy when Ross presented the plan.

— Meet Wilbur Ross, who once bailed out Trump in Atlantic City and is now his pick for Commerce secretary. LA Times, December 8th, 2016.

This bailout surely didn’t come without strings attached: Ross’s later appointment as Commerce Secretary exemplifies the close ties between Trump’s administration and Zionist capital.

Trump's admiration for the Chabad-Lubavitch movement, especially the work of the Rabbi Menachem Mendel Schneerson, reveals yet another layer of Zionist influence. Under the leadership of Schneerson, also known as the Rebbe, Chabad expanded significantly; establishing centers worldwide. The Seven Noahide Laws became a cornerstone of Chabad's outreach, and since 2018, every state in America has officially celebrated the Rebbe's birthday:

This year, for the first time, proclamations or the equivalent have been issued by the governors of all 50 states and the mayor of Washington, D.C., recognizing the day and what it stands for.

— Trump Meets With Rabbis in Oval Office, Proclaims Education Day, 2018

Rabbi Levi Shemtov has stated that “[President Trump] admires the work of the rebbe”. It's also worth noting that Trump's son-in-law, Jared Kushner, and his father, Charles Kushner, are both members of Chabad, embedding this influence even deeper within the Trump administration.

Since Carter, every president has publicly celebrated “Education Day” and the Rebbe's work of instituting the Noahide laws (don't let the benign name fool you). That these allegedly universal edicts are the “basis of civilized society” has been codified into US law since 1991 (emphasis mine):

Whereas Congress recognizes the historical tradition of ethical values and principles which are the basis of civilized society and upon which our great Nation was founded;

Whereas these ethical values and principles have been the bedrock of society from the dawn of civilization, when they were known as the Seven Noahide Laws;

Whereas without these ethical values and principles the edifice of civilization stands in serious peril of returning to chaos...

Whereas Rabbi Menachem Mendel Schneerson, leader of the Lubavitch movement, is universally respected and revered and his eighty-ninth birthday falls on March 26, 1991;

Whereas in tribute to this great spiritual leader, 'the rebbe,' this, his ninetieth year will be seen as one of 'education and giving,' the year in which we turn to education and charity to return the world to the moral and ethical values contained in the Seven Noahide Laws...

— Public Law 102-14, March 20th, 1991

The seven laws are seemingly benign on the surface, but it is the first law — not to worship idols — and its interpretation that should give any Christian serious pause. According to most interpretations of these allegedly Noahic laws, orthodox Trinitarians would be legally barred from practicing their faith — under penalty of death. A curious thing to support for the allegedly Christian Trump, no?

Schneerson and Chabad have their own close ties with Israeli intelligence as well. Throughout the years, senior Israeli officials — including five prime ministers — visited Schneerson in Brooklyn:

"Throughout the years, the Rebbe received correspondence from, and was frequently visited by, senior officials in the Israeli government and Israel Defense Forces," Rapoport writes in his book The Afterlife of Scholarship. "The visitors included five of Israel's prime ministers – Menachem Begin, Yitzhak Rabin, Shimon Peres, Ariel Sharon and Benjamin Netanyahu – [who] visited the Rebbe in Brooklyn at various stages of their careers. In addition, there was a steady stream of visiting military and intelligence leaders, as well as ministers and Knesset members from the entire gamut of the Israeli political spectrum."

— Walking a tightrope: Chabad's complicated relationship with Zionism

The Rebbe's meetings with Israeli leaders, both civilian and military, only underscores the massive influence this religious movement has had on world politics.

"I was told Epstein 'belonged to INTELLIGENCE' and to leave it alone."

— Alexander Acosta, Trump's Secretary of Labor (2017-2019)²

The saga of Trump and Epstein is a tale as twisted as a serpent's coil, and equally as venomous. One cannot ignore the spectacle of their camaraderie, plastered across tabloids and whispered amongst the halls of power. Trump, the brash tycoon with a penchant for gilded excess, and Epstein, the shadowy financier with a Rolodex of the world's elite — an unholy alliance if ever there was one. Yet, their relationship met an abrupt and curious end. The official narrative is that Trump distanced himself from Epstein long before the latter's arrest, a claim that rings hollow to the discerning ear.

Then of course there is the spectacle of Epstein's death — a farce so transparent it insults our intelligence. Officially deemed a suicide, Epstein's demise is shrouded in a fog of inconsistencies. The security cameras miraculously malfunctioning, guards conveniently asleep, and the inexplicable failure of protocol in a high-security prison — each detail adds another layer of increasing absurdity. The body that was wheeled out of the MCC bore distinct differences from Epstein, being whisked away with unseemly haste. In the grand tradition of political theatre, Epstein's death serves as the ultimate act of misdirection, a disappearing trick worthy of Houdini himself.

As we conclude this chapter, it is imperative to recall the prophetic words of Isaiah (emphasis mine):

Thy princes are rebellious, and companions of thieves: every one loveth gifts, and followeth after rewards: they judge not the fatherless, neither doth the cause of the widow come unto them.

This passage vividly encapsulates the moral decay and treachery that has permeated our leaders — a corruption embodied by Donald J. Trump, Jeffrey Epstein, and the cabal of conspirators that have propped them up. As we transition into Part III, prepare yourselves, dear readers, as we dissect the sinister tapestry woven by Trump’s occult practices and unholy affiliations.

Our journey will expose the clandestine rituals and esoteric connections that have shaped Trump’s path, revealing a man ensnared by dark forces far beyond mere political machinations.

To me Pete, its quite obvious that the assassination attempt is all part of the staged play acting to give Trump a good image of being hated by the establishment, while Biden is projected as stupid and incompetent. When Trump was last in office he was only acting, because Kushner his brother in law was the real president and addressed him as such. I suspect also that the real president of the time of Trump's term of office has never changed!!
